

The yellow components are the pieces of software that execute particular calculations or define protocols, to achieve variable selection objective.

The green components are the pieces of software that execute the variable selection using PCA techniques.

PCA VS does the conventional PCA variable selection.

SPCA VS does the supervised PCA

The SampleComplexity component helps researcher to find good tradeoff between the size of sample to use to fit a new model and the number of variables used in model.